

NAIDOC Week 2025

Explore this year's NAIDOC Week theme of The Next Generation: Strength, Vision & Legacy. Consider how this can be applied to your teaching and classroom practice.

Explore fantastic resources available from ABC Education!

Discover incredible resources from Kylie Captain including a fantastic First Nations event calendar among many other insightful offerings to support classroom practice.

SBS has a wide range of Indigenous recipes. Check them out and give one a go! Check out the MoAD Learning recommended reading list for First Nations books.

For a slow looking activity within the classroom; encourage students to reflect on First Nation's voices, culture, and resilience by writing a letter to future custodians.

Watch First Nations artist Jade Goodwin's videos on YouTube on how to illustrate and collage. Support students to create a collaborative classroom display.

 Listen to the insightful podcast Indigenous Education - Deadly Futures to further learn about how to embed Indigenous education into your teaching and learning. Read Listen by Duncan Smith AO and Nicole Godwin, then check out the MoAD learning resource to accompany the book and engage in the civic activities and questioning.

Consider opportunities for co-design in the classroom. Get inspired by Come Together written by Isaiah Firebrace, on the key topics including culture, practice and Dreaming.

Explore poetry in First Languages through Kirli Saunders work. Support students to write their own poem to connect to country and community.

For more NAIDOC Week activities visit the MoAD Learn website!